1. INTRODUCTION: -

Industrial Pollution in our country is on increase and is creating a high-risk environment, which cannot be totally protected against extraneous stress, imposed by the industries. However, these strains need to be mitigated to tolerable limits. Every industry is undoubtedly vital for economic growth of the country. So, industries should be allowed to continue in strict conformance to existing environmental guidelines. Ministry of Environment and Forests, govt. of India, vide notification CSR329 (E) dated 13th March, 1992, introduced the "Environment Statement" as a technique for harmony between industry and environment, so that these could be mutually supportive. Every person carrying on an industry, operation or process; requirement of consent to operate under section 25 of the water (prevention and control of Pollution) Act, 1974 or under section 21 of the Air (Prevention and Control of Pollution) Act, 1981 are essential.

Environment statement report for the financial year ending the 31st March in the prescribed Form-V also should be submitted to the concerned state pollution control board on or before 30th day of September every year.

DEFINITION: -

Environmental Statement is defined as a management tool comprising a systematic and documented approach towards evaluation of a company's environment system as a whole which includes assessment of present environmental practices, equipment performance, compliance to statutory regulations, document control, corrective and preventive actions adopted etc. So, Environment Statement serves two basic purposes: one is evaluation of attitude of the organization in maintaining proper environmental practices and another is assessing equipment facilities.

The essential purpose of an environmental audit is the systematic scrutiny of environmental performance throughout a company's existing operations. At best, an Environment Statement is a comprehensive examination of management systems and facilities.

The term environmental audit means different things to different people. Terms such as assessment, survey and review are used to describe the same type of activity. Furthermore, some organizations consider that an “environmental audit” addresses only environmental matters, whereas others use the term to mean an audit of health, safety and environmental matters.

ADVANTAGE: -

Environmental Statement was introduced, as a technique to integrate interest of the industry and that of environment, by an amendment [GSR 329(E)] dated 13th March'92 to the Environment (protection) Rules, 1986. Environment Statement is to be carried out by the desire of the company's Management, in order to comply with Government regulations and for its own satisfaction about its pollution control activities. Environment Statement points out at the risk involved due to sudden failure of safety as well as control equipment. Environment Statement helps in optimal utilization of resources and cost minimization also.
